ROB SCHMITT (HOST): Speaker Johnson has indicated that Biden had no idea -- Biden had no idea that he had stopped, I guess liquid LNG, liquid natural gas exports to other countries. And that's extremely interesting from the perspective of energy, which is why we have you on to talk. But it's also just terrifying, the idea that we had a president that had no idea what he was doing, which which kind of tracks, when you think about how radical that administration was and you look at Joe Biden, I didn't think Joe Biden was that radical. Yeah, because he didn't really know what he was doing.

STEVE MILLOY (GUEST): No. Well, we all knew he was not compos mentos, that he doesn't know about an LNG export terminal moratorium. I'm not surprised. There's lots of other stuff he probably wasn't aware of that he actually, you know, mandated EVs and banned the internal combustion engine.

SCHMITT: So, you know, he's just pushing ahead. I wonder how quickly you think we'll see a change. Will we see fuel prices go down? Will we see heating costs go down?

MILLOY: I think we're going to see a lot of prices go down. I don't know how much lower gas is going to go, but electricity prices can go down. Food prices can go down. I'm glad to hear about the windmills. I mean, we may never see another windmill built in the United States, especially offshore. So that's great news. We are, as you said, drill baby, drill. Gas, oil -- we're going to be mining coal. We are back, baby. We are in charge of the global energy market again. The price of a barrel of oil depends on the United States, not OPEC. We have good times ahead of us, Rob.
